

New CEO Joins Sioux Center Community Hospital

Sioux Center Community Hospital and Health Center welcomes Kayleen Lee as the new Chief Executive Officer.

Lee's educational background and experience are key factors in the decision to extend the offer to her.

"Kayleen's experience as CEO of an organization which included a critical access hospital, skilled nursing facility, and congregate housing fits nicely with the services offered in our community," says Dale Vande Berg, hospital board president. "Kayleen has led major renovation and expansion projects for both the nursing facility and hospital in her former community."

For the past 10 years, Lee has been the CEO of Weskota Memorial, a 25 bed rural hospital and 40 bed nursing home in Wessington Springs, South Dakota. Prior to that, she was the Director of Nursing at Huron Regional Medical Center in Huron, SD.

"I take the skills that I developed at Weskota with me to Sioux Center," says Lee. "I look forward to facilitating the strong tradition of partnerships between healthcare and the community. I'm also looking forward to getting to know the employees, medical staff, board members and volunteers who all make Sioux Center Community Hospital and Health Center come to life."

Lee sees her responsibilities reaching beyond her work within the organization and extending into the Sioux Center community.

"Having a healthcare organization like this is vital in a growing community. And I believe that together, the Sioux Center Hospital and the Sioux Center community can continue the positive traditions and work together to continually improve the quality of healthcare services available."

Lee and her husband Bob, have been married 26 years. They have two children, Lacey and Phillip, and one grandson, Johnny.
